The people who gave you such great service with Fidelity American...

...will now be giving you the same great service with Central Fidelity.

Actually, our people haven't changed banks, our bank has changed its name. Fidelity American Bank is now Central Fidelity Bank.

We made this change so that our bank will be more closely identified with our 1.7 billion dollar holding company, Central Fidelity Banks, Inc. It also makes our name compatible with our other affiliate banks, giving the Central Fidelity system over 130 offices across Virginia.

Physically, nothing will change except our new signs. You can still use your personal checks from Fidelity American and when it's time to reorder, we'll send you checks with our new name on them. Your personalized forms such as deposit and withdrawal slips will also be replaced when you reorder.

As far as our people go, they'll all be here to offer you the same helpful service as always, and you can find them at the same convenient locations.

At Fidelity American, we've made a lot of changes over the years to provide you with the kind of service you expect from a good bank.

We think this change will prove to be one of the best.
